

DHS gears up for civil unrest prior to presidential elections

Published: 28 July 2012, 12:49
Edited: 28 July 2012, 12:49

The Department of Homeland Security has ordered masses of riot gear equipment to prepare for potential significant domestic riots at the Republican National Convention, Democratic National Convention and next year's presidential inauguration.

The DHS submitted a rushed solicitation to the Federal Business Opportunities site on Wednesday, which is a portal for Federal government procurement requirements over $25,000. The request gave the potential suppliers only one day to submit their proposals and a 15-day delivery requirement to Alexandria, Virginia.

As the brief explains, "the objective of this effort is to procure riot gear to prepare for the 2012 Democratic and Republican National Conventions, the 2013 Presidential Inauguration and other future similar activities."

The total amount ordered is about 100 sets of riot helmets, thigh and groin protectors, hard-shed shin guards and other riot gear.

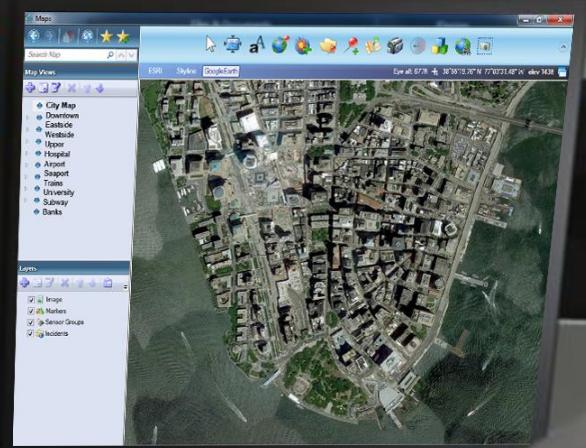

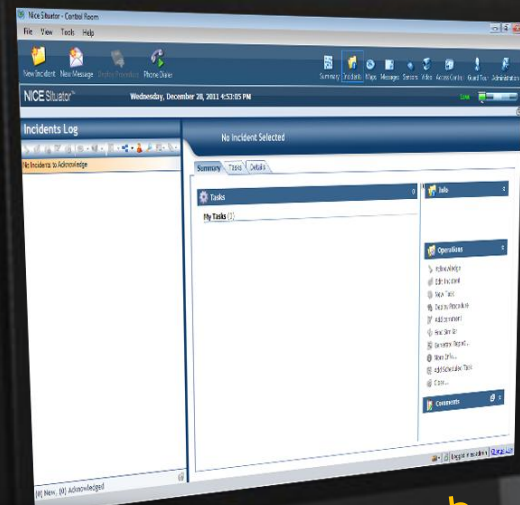

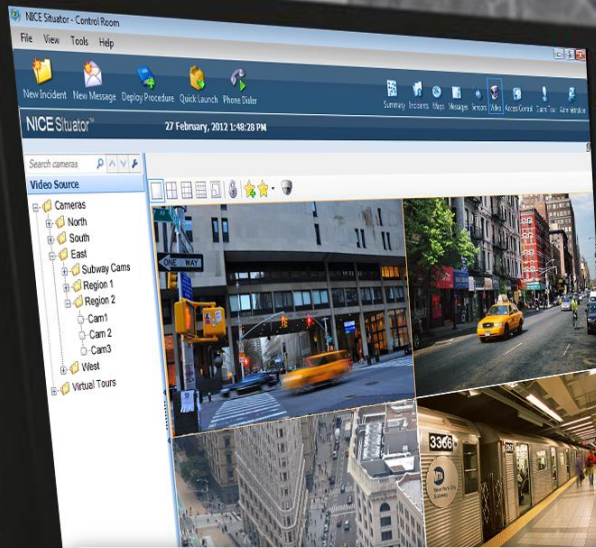

Specifically, DHS is looking to obtain:

-- "147 riot helmets" with "adjustable tactical face shield with liquid seal"

-- "147 sets of upper body and shoulder protection"
